By taxi

1. Budget Taxi

This is the easiest way and if this is your first visit to Kuala Lumpur we strongly recommend to take a taxi directly to your hotel. At the Airport Taxi counter you will have to buy a COUPON for the taxi. Provide the name of your hotel. The fare to Kuala Lumpur city is RM 67.40. Make sure you request a BUDGET taxi. Limousines are much more expensive! The taxis wait in front of Exit 3 of the arrival hall. You will find officers at the arrival halls to guide you.

Tips: You may be approached by touts who offer taxi service to town. Please note that these are illegal and ALWAYS more expensive than the official Airport Taxis.

When you board on a taxi, make sure the meter is reset and switched on. As anywhere in the world, taxi drivers in Kuala Lumpur sometimes want to make a quick buck and try to overcharge customers, particularly foreigners. In tourist areas and also in the area around your hotel you will find taxi drivers refusing to use the meter and requesting exorbitant fares of RM 20 or more. We suggest you reject such offers and insist on using the meter. At times it may be advisable to walk a few hundred meters to another area to find taxis, which accept to use the meter. You may also refer to the hotel's Concierge for assistance. There have been reports of taxis having manipulated meters, which show between two times to ten times the normal fare. If you feel that the taxi driver is overcharging you, we suggest that you ask for a receipt and to write down the drivers taxi license and the car number, which are displayed in the taxi for later complaints.

Kuala Lumpur

Location: 3.1597° N, 101.7000° E

Population: 1.6 million

Area: 243 km²

History:

The founding of KL was almost an accident. In 1857, 87 Chinese prospectors in search of tin landed at the meeting point of the Klang and Gombak rivers and set up camp, naming the spot Kuala Lumpur, meaning ‘muddy confluence’. Within a month all but 17 of the prospectors had died of malaria and other tropical diseases, but the tin they discovered in Ampang attracted more miners and KL quickly became a brawling, noisy, violent boomtown, ruled over by so-called ‘secret societies’, a network of Chinese criminal gangs. As in other parts of the Malay peninsula, the local sultan appointed a proxy to bring the unruly Chinese fortune-seekers and their secret societies into line. The successful candidate, Yap Ah Loy, took on the task with such ruthless relish that he’s now credited as the founder of KL. According to legend, Yap Ah Loy was able to keep the peace with just six policemen, such was the respect for his authority in the Chinese community. Loy had only just established control when local sultans went to war over the throne of Perak and its tin mines, marking the start of the Malay Civil War. KL was swept up in the conflict and burnt to the ground in 1881. This allowed the British government representative, Frank Swettenham, to push through a radical new town plan which transferred the central government from Klang to KL. By 1886 a railway line linked KL to Klang. A year later a new city was constructed in fire-resistant brick, and in 1896 KL became the capital of the newly formed Federated Malay States. The British surrendered Malaya early in WWII and KL was brutally occupied by Japanese forces. The British temporarily returned after WWII, only to be ousted when Malaysia finally declared its independence in 1957 at Merdeka Square (Independence Square). The city officially became the Federal Territory of Kuala Lumpur when it was ceded by the sultan of Selangor in 1974. Its mayor and councilors are appointed on the recommendation of the government, which is dominated by Malay politicians. There’s little accountability and a job on the council is largely seen by locals as license to print money, not least because KL is Malaysia’s most prosperous and populous city. In 1996, Prime Minister Mahathir Mohammed approved the construction of a new political capital 20km south of KL at Putrajaya. Although only 50,000 of the 330,000 residents planned for Putrajaya have moved into their new homes, the budget for the project has already exceeded US$5 billion. Putrajaya was made the official seat of the Malaysian government in 1999. Since the turn of the millennium, Kuala Lumpur has been in the news more for demonstrations than innovation – city police used tear gas and water cannons to disperse antidiscrimination protests by thousands of ethnic Indians in 2007 and 2008, arresting many protesters under Malaysia’s draconian security laws.

Time

UTC Malaysia +8hours

Banks

Most banks in Kuala Lumpur are open Monday – Thursday: 09:15am – 04:30pm, Friday: 09:15am – 04:00pm
Saturday / Sunday / Public Holidays: Closed

Post Office

Most Post Offices are open Monday to Saturday but opening hours vary greatly. Some are also open on Sundays such as the one in KLCC and Midvalley. The Link below gives you specific details and a phone number to call to double check before you go.

http://www.pos.com.my/pos/about_us/network/branch_location/kuala_lumpur1.aspx

Shopping

Shops generally open from 09:30am to 07:00pm while supermarkets and department stores open from 10:00am to 10:00pm. The bigger stores also remain open on Sundays.

Electricity

Electrical sockets (outlets) in Malaysia are the "Type G " British BS-1363 type. If your appliance's plug doesn't match the shape of these sockets, you will need a travel plug adapter in order to plug in.

Special Needs

Delegates and accompanying persons with disabilities are invited to advise the Congress Secretariat of any special requirements.

Pharmacy

Pharmacies can be found in large shopping malls and are generally open from 10:00-22:00. Over-the-counter medicines can be purchased from convenience stores, although strong painkillers require a prescription from a doctor. You can call at the 24-hour National Pharmacy Call Center at +603-2615 5136

Currency

The Malaysian Ringgit is the currency of Malaysia. The currency symbol is RM. There are several currency exchange counters in the transit and arrival area of the airport (rate approximately 3.4 RM/USD). We recommend that you change enough money here to cover the first days of your stay in Kuala Lumpur.

To convert your currency in RM you can visit: <http://www.xe.com/>

Health and Safety:

Although Kuala Lumpur is a relatively safe city, it is advisable to observe the normal precautionary rules, because pickpockets and thieves prey especially on tourists and foreigners. So when you move around town, we suggest you observe the following safety rules:

1. Leave all valuables in the hotel's safe boxes.
2. Only carry as much money with you as you will need.
3. Carry your money and valuables in a safe bag or pocket close to your body.

a. Food

Generally, the level of food hygiene throughout the country is high. However, make sure your food and drinking water are safe. Food from street vendors should be treated with care. Drink only bottled or boiled water. If possible, avoid tap water, fountain drinks, and ice cubes. Bring along iodine tablets and portable water filters to purify water if bottled water is not available. Also, wash your hands often with soap and water.

b. Mosquitoes

Due to the constant humid climate, mosquitoes tend to be present throughout the year. The three most significant diseases transmitted by mosquitoes are Malaria, Dengue Fever and Japanese B Encephalitis. To repel mosquitoes, ticks and other arthropods, apply an insect repellent containing DEET to your skin or clothing. The risk of malaria for most tourists visiting Peninsular Malaysia is extremely small. There is insignificant risk in Kuala Lumpur, Penang and other major cities. However, in East Malaysia, the risk of malaria is present throughout the year. Even in these regions, the risk is mainly off the coastal plains and towards the border areas. Generally, prophylaxis is recommended for those visiting Sabah or Sarawak.

c. Dehydration and Sunburn

The sun is strong throughout the year in the country. Proper care against sunburn must be constantly taken. Dehydration and loss of salt through perspiration are two other common problems for the unprepared traveler. Drink plenty of fluids and replace your salt loss and remember that alcoholic drinks make dehydration worse, not better. Make sure you pack clothing suitable for a warm humid climate.

Places of Interest in Kuala Lumpur

National Museum, Kuala Lumpur

Muzium Negara used to be the site of the Selangor Museum, established in 1898. After the country's independence in 1957, the new federal government built a newer, larger museum on the same spot. Once completed, the reigning King at the time, the Yang di-Pertuan Agong III, Tuanku Syed Putra Al-Haj Ibni Almarhum Syed Hassan Jamalullail officially opened the museum on 31 August 1963. Today, the museum houses various exhibits depicting the historical background of the country. The exhibits are on a rotational basis, so it is best to call the museum ahead to check out what their exhibits are at the time.

Batu Caves

Batu Caves is an iconic and popular tourist attraction in Selangor. Site of a Hindu temple and shrine, Batu Caves attracts thousands of worshippers and tourists, especially during the annual Hindu festival, Thaipusam. A limestone outcrop located just north of Kuala Lumpur, Batu Caves has three main caves featuring temples and Hindu shrines.

Its main attraction is the large statue of the Hindu God at the entrance, besides a steep 272 climb up its steps to finally view the stunning skyline of the city centre. Monkeys frolic around the caves, and it is a popular spot for rock climbing enthusiasts. Paintings and scenes of Hindu Gods can also be seen in the Ramayana Cave. Batu Caves is a place where you should not miss.

Vin's Restaurant and Bar

At VIN's we love to explore and experiment with recipes, and often take traditional recipes and add our own spin to it. We firmly believe in À La Minute cooking, making your food to order using fresh ingredients, with high quality meat and seafood, to create dishes that are worthy for your table. We also believe that every culture has dishes that shine and are appreciated at international dining tables. Therefore, we try to bring our patrons a sampling of cultures, traditions and flavours.

Ploy

Ploy means 'gem' in Thai. We were inspired by the true gems of Japanese and Thai cuisine – the interplay of sweet, sour, salty, spicy and umami flavours; the meticulous preparation of dishes using only the freshest ingredients. By applying these tenets of asian cooking to not-so-asian dishes, we created a new modern asian cuisine. Come 'ploy' with us and be dazzled.
